One space, a range of training options

A continuous fitness space combines cardio along the glazed facade, strength equipment at the centre and floor exercise at one end.

A wood-toned ceiling, light surfaces and dark columns form a coherent setting, alongside a graphic wall in shades of blue.

Materials and colours

Light surfaces, warm wood tones and dark equipment, with blue accents on the graphic wall.

Wood-toned ceiling

A rhythm of slats and warm lines.

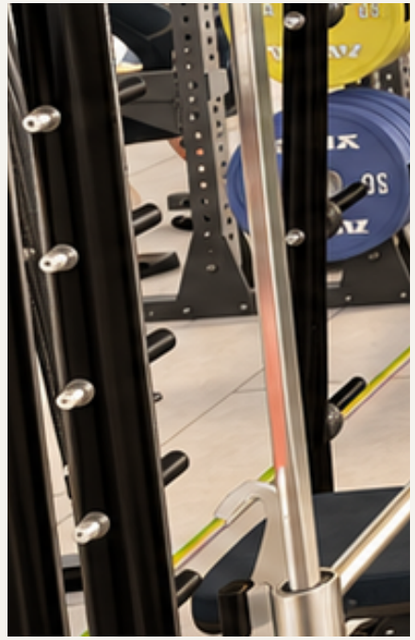

Light flooring

A calm base for the equipment.

Dark stone texture

Vertical rhythm and architectural presence.

Dark equipment

Frames, metal and upholstery.

Blue graphic wall

Movement along the strength area.

Illustrative material palette. Products and samples will be coordinated before implementation.

Light along the space

Daylight

The glazed facade accompanies the cardio area and connects training with the outdoors.

Warm ceiling light

Lines of light highlight the wood tones and the depth of the space.

Balanced illumination

Lighting will be coordinated with equipment positions, circulation and building systems.

Daylight, warm tones and subtle shadows bring clarity to the training space and its equipment.

Fixture positions and light levels will be set during detailed design.

The main training space

Strength equipment arranged along the main circulation route.

Cardio by the glazing

Cardio equipment faces the glazed facade.

Free weights and cardio

Training benches sit alongside the cardio area.

Strength and Smith training

The Smith machine and strength stations along the weights area.

A wider view of strength training

The strength equipment layout and its relationship to the graphic wall.

Floor exercise and stretching

Mat exercise space beside stretching stations and strength equipment.

A view from outside

The transparent facade reveals the training areas and the depth of the space.
